WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 25, 1882. THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Congress forms the greatest center of interest. The attention of both houses, but principally of the Senate, has been levoted during the past week in a great measure to the introduction and discusssion of bills and amendments relating to civil service reform. Senator Pendicton's bill has been the special order in the Senate each day, after the expiration of the morning hour. The Democrats generally oppose and the Republicans favor the bill. Many Senators have taken occasion to make extended political speeches reviewing party hisery tory, party tactics in elections, and all for Vest made an extended speech on Thursday, opposing the bill.
